Undergraduates and Faculty

Summer research opportunities in plant biology are available.

What is the ASPB Diversity Bank?

The ASPB Diversity Bank was initiated to promote diversity in plant biology. It is an online database of summer research projects and research seminars. Projects in plant biology are available to underrepresented faculty and undergraduate students seeking them. Seminars on plant biology research by visiting ASPB scientists are available to minority serving institutions. ASPB members are encouraged to contribute project opportunities and seminar topics. Especially encouraged to apply are faculty and undergrad students who are either underrepresented in plant biology or located at minority serving institutions.
